

← Post

May Mailman ✓
@MayMailman

🔴 Westenbroek v. KKG update 🔴

Today, as expected after oral argument, a 3-judge panel on the Tenth Circuit declined to accept jurisdiction over the Kappa women's appeal. This decision is on one hand confusing, because it's wrong. Appellate courts have jurisdiction over district court merits decisions, and that's what we had here.

But it's not so confusing really. This panel knows the district court was wrong. That is, the panel knows the Kappa directors, on the facts presented, wrongfully forced a man into these women's chapter house. But they also desperately wanted to avoid saying so. So they created an "out."

We are not discouraged. If anything, this is a positive sign. The Kappa women are right legally and morally, the court knows this, and it's simply a matter of when they are vindicated.

2:36 PM · Jun 12, 2024 · 3,605 Views

2

9

31

Post your reply

Reply

Kathy @skykat44 · Jun 12, 2024

1

102

The Real Parents of Loudoun ... ✓ @RealLOCOP... · Jun 12, 2024

They're cowards! May God bless the Kappa's women and you! 🌸

1

104

